Catholic Man of the Month

St. Giuseppe Moscati
(1880-1927)

Giuseppe Moscati was born July 25, 1880, the seventh of nine children in a family of Italian nobility. Four years later, the family moved from Benevento to nearby Naples, where Moscati would spend most of his life.

In 1893, his older brother Alberto, a lieutenant in the army, was brought home with a devastating head injury. For years, Moscati helped care for his beloved brother, attentive to his physical and spiritual needs.

Profoundly affected by this experience, Moscati entered medical school at the University of Naples in 1897. He became a doctor at age 23 and immediately began to practice medicine at the city's Hospital for Incurables. Gradually, Moscati gained a reputation as "the holy physician of Naples", both for his ability to diagnose and cure illnesses and because he encouraged his patients, especially those awaiting surgery, to receive the sacraments.

Acts of heroic charity accompanied Moscati's faith. When Mount Vesuvius erupted in 1906, he rushed to a hospital filled with trapped patients and rescued them just as the roof collapsed under the weight of the ash. In 1911, during a cholera outbreak, he worked around the clock for days, tending the poor for free.

Having taken a vow of chastity, Moscati regarded his medical practice as a lay apostolate. "Remember that you must treat not only bodies," Moscati wrote to a young doctor, "but also souls, with counsel that touches their hearts and minds rather than with cold prescriptions to fill at the pharmacy."

On April 12, 1927, after attending daily Mass and completing his hospital rounds, Moscati felt fatigued and lay down. He died peacefully that day at the age of 46. Canonized by Pope John Paul II in 1987, Moscati was the first modern doctor to be declared a saint. His feast day is November 16th.

33RD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME; YEAR A

November 16, 2014

The Gospel for Sunday tells a pretty simple story. A wealthy man leaves goods for each of three servants to manage while he is gone. Of the three he sees two that invested the talent and got back twice the amount. He is delighted. Thus far the moral of the story would be: "Make the most of what you've got."

The third man buried the talent, quite simply, he was afraid of investing it and losing it. The owner took a great risk and he wanted them to do the same, not to leave the investment rotting away underground somewhere.

Assume now that the parable is about God. Maybe God entrusts an even greater amount to us, our own lives with all their rewards and catastrophes. God says to us, dive in. Have your life. Make whatever you will with it because you are my beloved.

In the realm of spirituality there is only one thing that goes away if it is buried but which gets greater if you use it. Love. If fear slams the door against love, we will be in the darkness outside, wailing and grinding our teeth.

We all are frightened, but God has compassion upon us. God waits to see if we will not accept the love he offers, and if we will find the courage to invest some of that love in other people. This is a reaction from someone who loves us very well.

Remember, love casts out fear. Let love in.
