Blessed Among Us Rafael Palacios Priest & Martyr (1939-1979)

In the violence preceding the civil war in El Salvador, June 1979 was a typical month: 123 people were killed by death squads, including thirty teachers, assorted labor leaders, and peasants, whose mutilated bodies were left by the side of the road. One of the victims was a priest, forty-year-old Rafael Palacios, who had worked with grassroots communities in Santa Tecla, and who had recently taken over a parish after its previous pastor had been killed.

His work with the poor had marked him as a subversive. Several days before his death, the White Warriors Union, a right-wing death squad whose motto was “Be a patriot, kill a priest”, had painted a threat on his car. On June 20 he was shot in the street in Santa Tecla.

Archbishop Oscar Romero preached at his funeral and called on the authorities to control “these forces of hell and murder”. Of Fr. Rafael and other martyred priests, he said, “It would be sad if, in a country where murder is being committed so horribly, we were not to find priests also among the victims. They are the testimony of a church incarnated in the problems of its people.”

“In Rafael Palacios, we see the new man and the zeal he had to fashion those new human beings that Latin America needs today—not just by changing structures but above all by changing hearts. It is the voice of conversion, the voice of genuine evangelization.”—Archbishop Oscar Romero

Dear Padre

Why is Jesus' ancestry described inconsistently in the Bible?

Why is there such a difference between the genealogy of Jesus outlined in Matthew 1 and Luke 4:23?

Matthew wrote his Gospel story first. He was a Jewish man who wanted to tell his Jewish audience that Jesus was the long-awaited Messiah, the savior who had come. He needed to show that Jesus was part of the long tradition of the people of God, starting with Abraham, the father of the faith.

Luke was a Greek writing to Gentiles. He accompanied St. Paul on his many missionary journeys. His listeners and readers knew very little of Jewish culture and tradition. Luke wanted to show that Jesus had come as savior and redeemer of all races and all peoples. So he starts with Adam, the father of us all, and says salvation is now universal. Your last name and skin color are immaterial.

This belief of universal salvation will reach its fullness in the doctrine of the Mystical Body of Christ, in which all of us are included. Christ is the head, and we are the members of the one body that is the Church.

Keep reading the word of God for more wonderful insights.
