Blessed Among Us

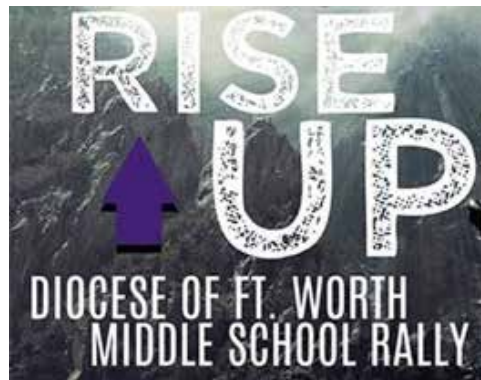

St. Catherine dei Ricci

Mystic (1522-1590)

Catherine dei Ricci, who was born in Florence, entered the Dominican convent when she was thirteen. Rising to prominence in the community, by the age of thirty she was elected prioress for life. Her reputation for wisdom and holiness traveled far beyond the convent, and she corresponded with many members of the clergy, including three cardinals who later became popes. It was the fame of her ecstatic visions, however, that attracted the most attention (quite contrary to Catherine's desires). At the age of twenty she had the first of a series of extended visions in which she not only beheld but reenacted the scenes of Christ's passion: holding out her hands to be bound, standing to be scourged, bending her head to receive a crown of thorns. These visions, which lasted from midday each Thursday until noon on Friday, were repeated every week for twelve years. During these experiences she would often address her fellow sisters with unusual eloquence and conviction.

Catherine also received the stigmata—the wounds of Christ on her feet, hands, and side—and a mysterious ring around her finger, a sign of her betrothal to Christ, which appeared differently, depending on the witness. Rather than take pride in these supernatural gifts, which aroused both interest and skepticism from curiosity seekers, Catherine accepted them as a form of mortification. Her greatest happiness was in caring for the sick. She died on February 2, 1590, and was canonized in 1746.

"We must look to life not death, as our goal."—St. Catherine dei Ricci
